

Texas Floods: Does Urban Sprawl Put More Homes in Path of Flooding?

Christian Science Monitor

05.27.2015

Related People:

J. Wylie Donald

The booming economy of Central Texas and the rampant development that comes with it may have played a role in exposing area communities to increased flood risk.

The region was one of the worst-hit by Memorial weekend flash flooding, leading to at least 19 deaths and numerous missing after torrential downpours in Texas and Oklahoma.