Randy draws from his extensive experience serving public power utilities, electric cooperatives, and other clients to advise on complex energy regulation and litigation matters.

Randolph Elliott counsels and represents utilities, trade associations, state and local governmental bodies, financial institutions, and consumer representatives in matters before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and in related litigation covering such issues as electricity markets, regional transmission organization tariffs, transmission access and rates, generator interconnection, power contracts, renewable energy, reliability standards, utility mergers and acquisitions, and utility bankruptcies.

Randy also helps clients address compliance matters involving the Federal Power Act, the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act, and other federal statutes.

Randy also has extensive appellate litigation experience, having briefed and argued numerous appeals of electricity and natural gas regulatory matters in the federal courts of appeals, including complex FERC rulemakings and rate proceedings.

Randy previously served as FERC regulatory counsel at the American Public Power Association and the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association. Earlier in his career, he served as an attorney at the FERC, handling appellate litigation in the federal courts of appeals and the Supreme Court.
